DAILY HOOKED CANDY

As He Wheeled the Sweetness About Freight House.

Kathleen Modrack Sues M. P. Fitzgerald and John Hanley to Collect Bill Against the Former.

The sweet tooth of Luigi Ondago, a young Italian, has been the cause of his downfall. Luigi was employed as truckman at the Erie freight transfer-house, and almost every day it was his duty to push a truck laden with buckets of candy. The temptation was too much for Luigi. Every day he would shove his truck back in a secluded part of the transfer house and tap one of the candy buckets. After satisfying his appetite and laying aside a supply of sweets for later in the day, he would take the bucket to its proper place.

This went on for some time, so the railway authorities say and they were unable to ascertain just who was taking the candy. This morning they watched Luigi pushing his truck across the platform and noticed that he cast wise looks at a certain candy bucket. W. H. Bingham, one of the company's detectives, kept his eye on the young son of Italy and saw him open the bucket. Then he placed Luigi under arrest.

The boy was taken before Justice H. C. Thompson where a charge of petit larceny was placed against him. He seemed unable to realize what was being done with him, and remained mute when the justice asked him to plead. He was fined $5 and costs and placed in the county jail pending payment of the amount.

Charges of contempt were filed against the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Railway company, John G. Webb, its president, and George H. Whysall, general manager, in the common pleas court of Franklin county, Friday. The charges were filed by James Chestnut.

At the January term of court, 1906, a mandatory injunction was issued, requiring the company to remove tracks it was building on Chestnut's property along the Columbus and Worthington pike. According to Chestnut, a suspension of the order was secured, pending an appeal to the circuit court. The supreme court has sustained the decision, and despite this, it is said, the company has neglected the order to remove its tracks.

HEALTH IN HIS HANDS

Boy Phenomenon will Prove His Ability to Heal the Sick

At the Opera House Monday and Tuesday Nights.

The Afflicted, Deaf, Sick, Paralyzed and All On Canes or Crutches Are Invited to Test His Power FREE.

The Boy Phenomenon, the young exponent of Vital Magnetism, who has packed every Theatre he ever appeared in, and mystified and convinced the largest audiences, will give a free exhibition of his phenomenal power Monday and Tuesday nights at the Grand Opera House. Admission to which is free to all, after which he may be consulted at the Majestic hotel for a few weeks by those wishing private treatment.

The Ft. Wayne Journal in a two column article, describing one of his exhibitions in that city, says:

"His work last night was of a decidedly interesting and surprising nature. The unfortunate persons on whom he operated, were all well known citizens of Ft. Wayne. Among the scores or more who tested his power last night, all said they were more than satisfied with the results and several made public acknowledgment of their relief or cure, while those who came to criticize, or were doubtful, went away convinced that he is possessed of some power they could not understand. As a prominent citizen remarked at the close of the exhibition, 'It's because of the wonder of it that people are so skeptical and incredulous."

Among the large number treated there was not a single failure reported, and all said they were either greatly benefited or entirely cured. Space forbids an extended reference to the many surprising and pathetic scenes which occurred as each patient left the stage transformed from pain and agony to health.

The first case treated was that of Menett Norris, a cigar man, living on Third street. Norris could not walk, the result of a stroke of paralysis. A few minutes application of the healing hands of the Boy Phenomenon made him as nimble as a boy.

Clyde Jones, eight years old, deaf for five years, as the result of scarlet fever, was made to hear in a manner almost unbelievable.

John Bacon, of 111 W. Forrest, afflicted with paralysis of the left side picked up his bed and walked, after years of inaction and a score of others became actual, tangible testimonials to the healing virtue of this magnetic wizard."

THE FAMOUS PEOPLE'S BAND.

Will give public concerts at 9 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. Sunday (Visitor's Day) at beautiful Garfield Park. Tent will furnish shelter in case of rain. No business transacted Sunday. Take East Center car.
